Directors' Report

MACRO-ECONOMIC CONTEXT

Context in 2017

The first half of 2017 ended with a relatively positive performance for the riskiest asset classes, such as shares and receivables, compared to government bonds. Globally, on average stock markets increased by more than 8% (in local currency) since the start of the year, attaining new historic levels: the increase in indexes was generalised by geographic area but was, on average, more pronounced in emerging countries. On the bond markets, returns were particularly high in the corporate issuers sector where borrowing capacity is weaker, and the government bonds sector in emerging countries, compared to a decrease in European government bonds. The rise in US long-term returns, which began last autumn following the presidential elections, was interrupted in the second quarter: investors' optimism regarding the prospects for fiscal expansion gave way to growing scepticism about the ability of the US administration to promptly approve an effective tax reform and deregulation plan. In spring, the rise in oil prices which began in 2016 also came to an end, and prices fell to below $50/barrel, reflecting a surplus in supply on the global markets despite the reduction in production in OPEC countries. For an investor in euros on the international markets, the contribution to the performance of the main foreign currencies was generally negative.

The evolution of the markets described here reflects a macro-economic context of reflation: the acceleration of economic growth was accompanied by an increase in inflation, benefiting corporate profits, investment expenditure and employment. During the first half of the year, the increase in global GDP accelerated by nearly 3%, a slightly higher rate than was forecast for the global economy and thus associated with moderate inflationary pressures. The cyclical upturn affected all of the major geographic areas but was more pronounced in the Eurozone, where the success of expansionary monetary policies led by the European Central Bank can be seen. The Federal Reserve continued its monetary normalisation policy launched at the end of 2015, increasing official rates twice in March and June; however, the US and global financial situations remained very expansive, supporting the economy and the financial markets.

The deflationary risks which have accompanied growth in recent years appear to have been overcome, but the economic upturn continues to be unable to equate to a stable recovery of inflation. After undergoing a sharp increase of 2% at the start of the year, during the second quarter inflation stabilised in developed countries: the fall in oil prices was accompanied by a more extensive wage moderation which reflects the continuation of excess capacity and structural changes on the employment market.

Political uncertainty has reduced in the Eurozone but has increased in the United Kingdom, where the British general election weakened the UK government's mandate in its approach to Brexit negotiations for its departure from the European Union: in March, the United Kingdom presented its formal application for its exit from the Union and entered into a long and complex negotiations process. The uncertainty arising from such negotiations will have negative repercussions on the British economy, as evidenced already by the weakening of leading indicators, while the economic impact on the rest of the Union should be limited and confined to those sectors with the highest level of openness with the United Kingdom.

Prospects 2017

The foreseeable situation for the second half of 2017 is moderately positive for high risk asset classes, although with higher volatility prospects and limited expected returns, given the advanced phase of the economic and market cycles and the previous performance of major asset classes.

Regarding the economic plan, after increasing for numerous months the leading indicators stabilised at high levels: once the acceleration phase is over, global growth should stabilise at rates of around 3%. In the twelve months to come, no recession is forecast in the main geographic areas. In the United States, the impact of any expansionary fiscal measures, the details and scale of which are still uncertain, is likely delayed until 2018. Among developed countries, the cyclical momentum should continue to be particularly positive in the Eurozone, which this year is expected to see its highest rate of growth since 2009. Among emerging countries, growth should slow down moderately in China and stabilise in the large oil-producing countries coming out of the recession such as Russia and Brazil.

Investors' focus should shift from sustaining growth to monetary policy normalisation. The consolidation of global growth and the end of deflationary risks have reduced the need to prolong the exceptionally expansionary monetary policies which have been prominent in developed countries. The main central banks have signalled their intention to progressively phase out this initiative, although with very different time-frames and intensities according to their different cyclical phases. In the United States, the Federal Reserve will proceed with monetary normalisation through both official rate increases and the gradual reduction of its own budget, acting on both fronts by the end of 2017. In the Eurozone, the European Central Bank should continue with its fiscal expansion with the acquisition of public and private securities next year, although this will probably occur at a less sustained rate from the start of 2018: an announcement to this effect will likely be given in the months to come. The central banks have signalled a gradual approach and the intention to avoid unwarranted tightening of financial conditions. However, the shift to a less expansionary monetary regime over time could increase the volatility of the financial markets.

In this context, our portfolio strategy remains focused on a moderate exposure to risk, with limited expected returns across all main asset classes. In the context described here, shares offer the best risk-return profile, even if valuations are generally high. The potential of the Eurozone, which should benefit from a positive cyclical phase, to experience high corporate operating leverage, reduced political risks and a less unfavourable context for the banking sector, remains significant. As regards bond investment, our preferred strategy remains in favour of receivables sectors which are least exposed to interest rate risk and we remain cautious as regards the government bonds sector, particularly in the Eurozone where interest rates continue to be very low. Investment in emerging zones, whether in shares or bonds, may provide an interesting opportunity for diversification but could also present a more significant level of volatility.

The main risks in this constructive context derive from an unexpected weakening of the US economy, protective interventions at the expense of international trade, a disorderly securities crisis in emerging economies and unexpected geopolitical developments.

EUROFUNDLUX - IPAC BALANCED

Shareholder allocation remained in line with the benchmark. The weighting of each share in the Eurozone has progressive increased in relation to global equity funds, thanks in part to the weakness of the dollar.

As regards bond allocation, the positioning has been subjected to different variations but has largely been characterised by an underweight in duration, spread over the curve of returns across central and peripheral countries. Exposure to the credit sub-fund, mainly concentrated on the subordinated industrial debt of issuers with high credit quality, has been retained. The underweighting at the start of the year on emerging markets has progressively, albeit only partially, passed.

The results of the interim period are marginally positive since the start of the year and above those of the benchmark.

Prospects

In terms of prospects, an underweight in duration shall be maintained. Corporate exposure is expected to persist, but will be subject to rigorous monitoring in order to limit its volatility. Exposure to the shareholder component shall remain stable compared to the first six months.

EUROFUNDLUX - EMERGING MARKETS EQUITY (formerly EUROFUNDLUX - PACIFIC EQUITY)

During the first six months, the Asian stock markets showed regular gains thanks to synchronised growth across global markets and the weakness of the dollar. Despite low prices of oil and raw materials, as well as geopolitical tensions regarding North Korea, stock exchange listings have reached new records driven by the technologies, financial and real estate sectors. The Pacific Equity Fund has maintained a share exposure which is slightly below the benchmark. At the start of the year, certain profits on technological, financial and consumer discretionary stocks have been made, reducing the underweighting on the Chinese, Hong-Kong, Korean and Taiwanese markets. Sector allocation remained favourable to the technology, financial, telephone, oil and utilities sectors, while remaining under-exposed to the consumer discretionary, pharmaceutical and industrial sectors.

At the end of May (29 May 2017), the sub-fund modified its investments policy and changed its name (EuroFundLux Emerging Markets Equity): as a consequence, the securities portfolio was liquidated and funds invested in emerging stock markets were purchased. To date, the sub-fund has recorded a positive performance since the start of the year.

The sub-fund changed its strategy and its name, shifting its focus from Asian Pacific shares (Pacific Equity) to globally emerging shares. The purchase of funds for investment in emerging stock markets has thus been carried out.

Approximately 70% of shareholders' equity (the main component of the sub-fund) was invested in actively managed funds characterised by different investment styles with a preference for quality growth strategies.

During this initial phase, the satellite component, dedicated to geographic asset choices, has a greater exposure to the emerging Asian and Eastern European markets.

Prospects

During the second half of the year, an almost neutral level of investment shall be maintained as regards the portfolio of specialised funds on global emerging markets characterised by different management styles and volatility profiles. Furthermore, geographic asset choices of a tactical nature shall be made through the use of management instruments.

EUROFUNDLUX - EURO EQUITY

In order to benefit from the strengthening of the economic cycle in Europe, the sub-fund began the year with a share portfolio which was essentially exposed to securities in the industrial and technological sectors underweighted towards the financial and energy sectors.

Thanks to the improved economic context and the corresponding weak valuations, the weighting of the financial sector, particularly the banking sector, which still represents the largest overweight at the end of the period, has gradually increased. At the same time, the exposure to the industrial and technological sectors, which no longer represent attractive valuations, was reduced and the under-weighting of the discretionary consumption component has been maintained.

The results of the interim period have been positive since the start of the year and above those of the benchmark.

Prospects

A balanced approach in terms of global and sector exposure will be maintained throughout the course of the next six months, continuing to focus on the analysis and selection of securities.

EUROFUNDLUX - CEDOLA 2017

During the first six months, the performance of the sub-fund was marginally negative. The portfolio was essentially invested in industrial or financial issues with a residual life of less than one year.

No particular strategic changes were made. The aim of management activities was to maintain an appropriate level of liquidity in view of repayment flows. The portfolio's risk profile and its volatility perspective were therefore progressively reduced by repositioning the portfolio on issues with a maximum residual life of twelve months. Liquidity resulting from the natural maturity of the issues and the early recall by the issuer was reinvested in Italian government securities.

Prospects

In the future, management activities will be limited to reinvesting the liquidity generated by bond maturity bonds in very short-term Italian government issues.

EUROFUNDLUX - EQUITY RETURNS ABSOLUTE

During the interim period, the portfolio was essentially invested in long/short-term funds, focusing on fund managers with a mid-to-low volatility profile, while the weighting of the neutral market continued to record values of less than 30%. In February, the recovery of defensive sectors surprised most fund managers, predominantly exposed to the financial and cyclical sectors.

The portfolio was expanded with the introduction of new strategies, reducing the main overweights and alleviating the weighting of US shares. In June, exposure to certain strategies focusing on mid-to-small cap securities increased, without affecting the risk profile. The performance of the sub-fund since the start of the year is positive.

Prospects

During the second half of the year, the portfolio's current risk profile, which continues to be characterised by the prevalence of long-short funds and a broad diversification context, shall be maintained.

EUROFUNDLUX - EURO CASH

During the course of the first six months, the management strategy has aimed to gradually increase the portfolio's exposure to corporate sub-funds, in order to achieve an improved return at maturity. Investments in securities with a maturity greater than one year have also been made, consequently maintaining a portfolio duration which is slightly higher than the benchmark. As regards corporate sub-funds, exposure has mainly focused on Italian and Spanish issuer bonds. On the run-up to potentially important events (such as the French elections), the positioning has generally been more defensive. At the end of the six months, the performance was negative and slightly lower than the benchmark due to negative returns on government and corporate Investment Grade bonds during the relevant periods.

Prospects

In the future, there is no intention to alter the positioning of the portfolio in any substantial way and any periods of weakness in the market will be exploited in order to reinvest the liquidity derived from matured securities to the greatest effect.

EUROFUNDLUX - OBIETTIVO 2017

During the first six months, management activities followed two main guiding principles: firstly, the reduction of positions characterised by maturities beyond the natural term of the sub-fund's mandate; secondly, the gradual reinvestment of the liquidity margin arising from repayment flows. No significant variation was recorded in terms of allocation within the different fixed return sub-funds: high exposure to the highest rated categories of high-return debt and subordinated debt by issuers with a significant credit quality remains. Performance during the first six months were positive thanks to contributions from all components of the portfolio.

Prospects

In the future, any liquidity will continue to be invested, focusing principally on industrial business issues.

EUROFUNDLUX - QBOND ABSOLUTE RETURN

At the start of the year, exposure to long-term government bonds was reduced following positive results in December, reducing the duration of the portfolio to a level slightly above 2 years. Interest rate increases and the widening gap between French/Italian government bonds and the corresponding German bonds impacted negatively on the sub-fund's performance. From February, the weighting of Italy and France was further reduced due to the climate of political uncertainty in Europe. The duration was decreased to a level slightly above one year, while the percentage invested in corporate bonds remained stable at 20%, essentially in investment grade ratings and residual high-return securities. Following the results of the elections in France, with a positive effect on French government bonds, the duration under-weighting German long-term government bonds was further reduced. A lower exposure to Italian short-term government bonds was maintained due to the risks associated with the forthcoming elections. The ease in political tension benefited Italian government bonds in June; however, interest rates began to rise at the end of the month in anticipation of a less expansionary monetary policy by the central banks. The sub-fund suffered from this and generated a negative performance during the six months.

Prospects

In the future, a conservative positioning in terms of interest rate risk and at-risk countries will be maintained, focusing on corporate bonds as opposed to German government bonds. In the case of further increases to the interest rate, the portfolio's extended duration will be assessed.

EUROFUNDLUX - MULTI SMART EQUITY - MuSE (formerly EUROFUNDLUX - DYNAMIC MULTIMANAGER)

In January, the product recorded a positive performance above its benchmark. Since 23 January, its name (Multi Smart Beta - MuSE) and its management policy have been altered.

On 23 January 2017, the fund changed its name and management policy, maintaining the size of its global shareholding through investment in the iSmart Beta BofA ML Global Style index. The index combines different investment factors (style factor) which enable the capture of a risk premium and take advantage of market inefficiencies.

During the first six months of the year, the sub-fund recorded a positive performance above its benchmark. This out-performance was generated by the overweighting of European shares and, to a lesser extent, Japanese shares.

In terms of investment factors, the "volatility" style factor generated the most significant positive contribution across all reference areas: United States, Europe and Japan. Furthermore, the growth, value and size factors relative to Europe added value, as did the liquidity in the United States. However, the contribution of the momentum factor was negative, particularly in the United States.

Prospects

The sub-fund will maintain share exposure at around 100%, diversifying between the investment factors which characterise the Smart Beta BofA ML Global Style index.

EUROFUNDLUX - GLOBAL ENHANCED DIVIDEND - GEDI

During the first six months of 2017, the fund performed positively. Shares continued to strengthen during the first half of 2017 thanks to improving global economic data and corporate profits as well as the reduction in geopolitical risk in Europe.

The main contributors to this positive performance were securities in the health and basic consumer goods sectors. However, exposure to the energy and retail sectors reduced value.

The options strategy, which followed an approach aimed at protecting capital, contributed negatively to performance due to the positive evolution of the stock markets.

Prospects

The fund remains in a prudent position in the face of high valuations on the stock markets in a historical context across certain market sectors.

Liquidity will be invested should investment opportunities characterised by attractive valuations arise.

EUROFUNDLUX - GLOBAL BOND

During the first half of the year, following the positive evolution of riskier assets, certain profits regarding high-returns sub-funds, convertible shares and bonds in emerging countries were made, increasing the portfolio's liquidity. A balanced distribution according to risk factors was maintained, focusing on strong-currency emerging bonds, corporate securities and inflation-linked securities. During the second quarter, exposure to US and German government bonds and the investment grade sub-fund, particularly vulnerable to rising interest rates, was reduced. Liquidity was invested in short-term high-yield securities, convertible shares and emerging bonds in local or strong currencies, bringing exposure to the dollar to around 40%. At the end of the period, exposure to the dollar was reduced and the percentage invested in yen was increased. During the six months, the fund performed negatively, penalised by the monetary and governmental inflation-linked component, while high-yield corporate sub-funds, convertible bonds and emerging bonds contributed positively to performance.

Prospects

During the second half of the year, exposure to emerging debt, inflation-linked bonds and corporate bonds will be maintained, in view of decreased exposure to government bonds.

EUROFUNDLUX - ALTO RENDIMENTO 2017

During the first six months, the performance of the fund was marginally negative. Being close to maturity, the sub-fund was invested in short-term bonds with reduced volatility and a risk profile in line with the residual life of the mandate. Managerial activities during the second quarter focused mainly on the reinvestment of liquidity arising from issues at maturity in short-term government issues and the management of repayment flows.

Prospects

During the weeks to come, managerial activities will focus mainly reinvesting issues at maturity into short-term issue bonds and the management of repayment flows.

EUROFUNDLUX - TR FLEX AGGRESSIVE

EUROMOBILIARE INTERNATIONAL FUND

At the start of the year, following the positive evolution of the markets certain profits in managerial and defensive equity funds were made, reducing the asset selection as regards value-type strategies. Exposure to convertible bonds, short-term corporate bonds and absolute equity bonds also increased. During the six months, the portfolio's liquidity was used to reinvest in European shares, convertible bonds and high-yield corporate bonds, focusing on short-term bond sub-funds; furthermore, the weighting of flexible global equity funds was reduced by increasing exposure to Japanese shares, European value-style shares and European small cap stocks. The portfolio remains exposed to managerial equity funds, to the detriment of flexible shares and crossover corporate shares. Since the start of the year the sub-fund has performed negatively.

Prospects

During the second half of the year, a favourable distribution of at-risk asset categories will be maintained, focusing on European and Japanese shares, convertible bonds and high-yield bonds, and maintaining limited exposure to duration.

EUROFUNDLUX - ALTO RENDIMENTO 2019 PLUS

During the first six months of 2017, the fund performed positively. The portfolio remains wholly diversified across a number of issuers and sectors.

At the start of the year, the fund focused on bond securities in the health, banking and telecommunications sectors, while at the end of the six months it is predominantly exposed to the health, financial services and energy sectors.

These contributed favourably to the performance of sovereign debt issues of emerging countries as well as those of rail and aerospace corporations. However, the energy, financial services and banking sectors lost value.

Prospects

In line with the maturity of the mandate, a decreasing duration profile and a well-diversified portfolio structure shall be maintained. Managerial activities will focus on the selection of issues characterised by a high level of liquidity and quality in the credit sector as well as the government bonds in the emerging countries sector.

EUROFUNDLUX - MULTI INCOME F4

During the first half of 2017, the portfolio performed positively thanks to an established investment strategy focused on the credit sector. At sector level, financial and infrastructure-related securities contributed positively to the evolution of the sub-fund. However, exposure to issuers in the energy sector lost value due to low oil prices linked to a global excess in supply.

The hedging failure strategy impacted negatively on the sub-fund due to the narrowing of corporate bond spreads.

However, the exposure to US securities, partially compensated by the performance of government bonds in the Eurozone, contributed positively.

Prospects

In the months to come, no significant changes to the current distribution of the portfolio are planned. The portfolio will maintain a conservative approach to duration and a diversified position across numerous fixed-yield sub-funds.

EUROFUNDLUX - EURO GOVERNMENT BOND

EUROMOBILIARE INTERNATIONAL FUND

The first half of the year was characterised by a positive evolution of the macro-economic context in the Eurozone; however, the impact of this dynamic has been slightly reduced by slow growth in the United States and a low level of inflation across developed markets.

In terms of managerial activities, focus centred on the precise selection of funds included in the portfolio with positions focused primarily on products deemed to offer the best risk/return profile. Portfolio duration was gradually reduced thanks to reductions in the level of investment; this position persisted at the end of June. The sub-fund's return was negative across the six months and was slightly lower than its benchmark. This under-performance is due to the evolution of certain funds in the portfolio.

Prospects

In terms of prospects, maintaining a risk/return profile of an underweighting of duration is advised. As a consequence, a lower level of exposure to interest rate risk will be maintained thanks to additional declines in investment.

EUROFUNDLUX - EUROPE CORPORATE BOND

The portfolio's distribution has not undergone any significant changes over the course of the six months, with the exception of profits in certain positions. In the context of low inflation rates and low yielding government bonds in the Eurozone, the European corporate sub-fund performed well. In terms of managerial activities, focus centred on the precise selection of funds included in the portfolio with positions focused primarily on products deemed to offer the best risk/return profile. The portfolio ended the first half of the year with a positive performance that exceeded that of its benchmark.

Prospects

Prospectively, no significant changes are expected to the portfolio's composition.

EUROFUNDLUX - EMERGING MARKET BOND

During the first half of the year, the positioning of the portfolio did not undergo any substantial changes, maintaining the level of investment in funds in emerging markets at more than 90%. The monetary policies of the central banks and the evolution of the commodity cycle were the leading factors behind the evolution of emerging markets. A context of the significant narrowing of the spread on securities of developed countries favoured major investment flows towards bonds in emerging countries, particularly those in strong currencies. Later, the climate became less favourable across emerging markets. A renewed drop in oil prices effectively halted the general rise in security returns of this sub-fund. The portfolio suffered from these weaknesses and recorded a negative performance, albeit still above its benchmark.

Prospects

Prospectively, the preference for funds denominated in strong currencies will continue.

EUROFUNDLUX - MULTI INCOME I4

The first half of 2017 was a favourable period for risky activities. In this context, the portfolio's returns were positive thanks to contributions from various sectors. The main contributor to the performance was the exposure to subordinated financial securities, non-financial high-yield bonds and, to a lesser extent, the shareholding component.

However, the sub-fund was penalised by European government securities due to an increase in returns, although losses were limited thanks to a moderated level of interest rate risk.

During the period, no significant changes were made to the portfolio's distribution. The total duration, maintained at just under four years, was reduced slightly in June.

Prospects

In the months to come, no significant changes to the current distribution of the portfolio are planned. A position conducive to growth, with moderate exposure to the riskiest sub-funds such as shares, will be maintained.

The high-yield bonds component remains focussed on companies in strong financial positions characterised by good cash flows.

EUROFUNDLUX - ALTO RENDIMENTO 2019

During the first six months of 2017, the fund performed positively. The portfolio remains wholly diversified across a number of issuers and sectors.

At the start of the year, the fund focused on bond securities in the health, banking and telecommunications sectors, while at the end of the six months it is predominantly exposed to the health, financial services and energy sectors.

These contributed favourably to the performance of sovereign debt issues of emerging countries as well as those of rail and aerospace corporations. However, the energy, financial services and banking sectors lost value.

Prospects

In line with the maturity of the mandate, a decreasing duration profile and a well-diversified portfolio structure shall be maintained. Managerial activities will focus on the selection of issues characterised by a high level of liquidity and quality in the credit sector as well as the government bonds in the emerging countries sector.

EUROFUNDLUX - FLEX HIGH VOL

During the first half of the year, the fund underwent negative portfolio duration exposure by positioning itself in order to benefit from any rise in interest rates in the Eurozone. The low duration level, further reduced during the six months, concerned the Italian market and, to a greater extent, the German market.

During the first two months of the year, exposure to the shares sub-fund, focused exclusively on the Eurozone, was negative: consequently, this positioning was reduced and then definitively liquidated at the start of the second quarter. In the months that followed, exposure to the stock market, which in any case was limited, was managed tactically. The performance in the first six months was negative.

Prospects

In the second half of the year, any corrections to the shares sub-fund will be made in order to increase the weighting of the portfolio. The duration will be generally maintained as negative.

EUROFUNDLUX - OBIETTIVO 2019

During the first half of the year, the sub-fund benefited from the favourable evolution of the benchmark asset class, resulting in a marginally positive performance despite the short residual life of the mandate.

Subscription flows were significant in terms of the size of the fund and certain issues in the portfolio were recalled on reaching their natural maturity, in accordance with the bond structure. These two factors created excess liquidity on a number of occasions: the managerial priority was therefore to invest this liquidity and maintain the portfolio's total investment. Issues characterised by a residual life in line with the mandate and a generally high credit risk profile were prioritised. The difficulty in selecting short-term issues with attractive returns often resulted in positions on longer term issues, but nonetheless characterised by a structure with a potential for early redemption of high-yield issues. The portfolio was not exposed to issuers of a financial nature. During the first six months, a residual position on industrial subordinated issues, which will be maintained or strengthened during the second half of the year, was taken.

Prospects

Prospectively, the funds will be entirely invested and maintained as such. No significant modifications will be made to the strategic approach, with the aim of accepting higher credit risks but at the same time minimising the volatility linked to the duration of each issue.

EUROFUNDLUX - CONVERTIBLE BOND

Since its launch in April 2017, the sub-fund has recorded a negative performance, mainly owing to the weakness experienced in this asset class during the second half of June. The main positive performance contributors were obtained by exposure to the industrial and consumer discretionary sectors.

However, securities in the energy sector lost value due to low oil prices. The technology sector was penalised by the correction in June. The sub-fund subscribed various issues on the primary market: two German investment grade companies operating in the raw materials sector and a US company operating in the technology sector.

Prospects

In the months to come, no significant changes to the current allocation of the portfolio are planned.

Investment opportunities arising from issues on the primary market will continue to be observed.

The sub-funds EUROFUNDLUX - MULTI SMART EQUITY - MuSE (formerly EUROFUNDLUX - DYNAMIC MULTIMANAGER), EUROFUNDLUX - TR FLEX AGGRESSIVE, EUROFUNDLUX - EQUITY RETURNS ABSOLUTE, EUROFUNDLUX - GLOBAL BOND, EUROFUNDLUX - EMERGING MARKET BOND, EUROFUNDLUX - EUROPE CORPORATE BOND and EUROFUNDLUX - EURO

GOVERNMENT BOND mainly invest their assets in other UCITSs and UCIs. The maximum amount of operating costs paid by these sub-funds and the UCITSs/UCIs in which they invest may not exceed 6% of their net assets.

d) Performance fees

Performance fees are also applied when the return of a sub-fund in a given period exceeds that recorded by the established benchmarks, with the exception of the following sub-funds: EUROFUNDLUX - IPAC BALANCED, EUROFUNDLUX - EURO CASH, EUROFUNDLUX - EURO GOVERNMENT BOND, EUROFUNDLUX - EUROPE CORPORATE BOND, EUROFUNDLUX - EMERGING MARKET BOND, EUROFUNDLUX - CEDOLA 2017, EUROFUNDLUX - OBIETTIVO 2019, EUROFUNDLUX - OBIETTIVO 2017 and EUROFUNDLUX - FLEX HIGH VOL, for which performance fees are not applicable.

The performance fees applied to the specified sub-funds are calculated and paid to the Investments Manager when the percentage increase in the share value of the relevant sub-fund recorded at the end of each month in relation to the value of the share in the corresponding month of the previous year exceeds the percentage variation during the same benchmark period for each sub-fund.

Each calculation for a new period begins at zero. In order to determine the percentage variation of the various indexes comprising the afore-mentioned benchmarks, the most recent values of the index relative to the month of reference published or available by the second working day of the end of the reference month and those corresponding to the same month of the previous year are considered.

EUROMOBILIARE INTERNATIONAL FUND

However, the Investments Manager is not paid performance fees in the case that, during the reference period, the sub-fund performs negatively and, as described above, the calculation for the new period of calculation shall start again at zero.

Where applicable, performance fees are proportional to the positive difference between the percentage increase in share value of the sub-fund and the percentage variation to the relevant benchmark, expressed in basis points, and equal to 1.666% per month, equivalent to 20% per annum, of the difference specified above.

The monthly rate relative to performance fees is calculated at the end of each month and is applied on a pro rata temporis basis to the total net assets of the sub-fund, at each calculation of the net asset value following the reference month. The monthly rate relative to performance fees is calculated on the net asset value of the sub-fund prior to the application of the performance fees.

However, in the first year performance fees are calculated by comparing the share values and benchmarks at the end of each month with the corresponding values recorded at the end of the previous month. Performance fees may not exceed 0.1241% per month (1.5 % per annum) of the sub-fund's total net value. No amount in excess of 0.1241% of the total net value is payable to the Investments Manager.

As regards the EUROFUNDLUX - QBOND ABSOLUTE RETURN sub-fund, the Manager receives performance fees for classes A and D in the case that the return of the sub-fund in a given period exceeds the return recorded by the BoFa Merrill Lynch Italy Government Bill Index increased by 1%. The annual rate is 30% of the positive different between Net Asset Value and the index increased by 1%.

As regards the EUROFUNDLUX - EURO EQUITY sub-fund, the Manager receives performance fees for Class D in the case that the return of the sub-fund in a given period exceeds the return recorded by the "benchmark" consisting of 100% of the Dow Jones Euro Stoxx 50 Index, valued in euros and weighted according to the capital of 50 European Blue-Chip stocks in countries belonging to the Eurozone. The annual rate is 30% of the difference between the Net Asset Value and the benchmark.

Remuneration Policy

The Company has established and applied a remuneration policy and methodology in accordance with Directive 2014/91/EU, in amendment to Directive 2009/65/EC coordinating legal, regulatory and administrative provisions concerning certain collective investment schemes or transferable securities, which promote and are compatible with a sound and effective risk management policy and do not encourage risk-taking that is incompatible with the risk profiles defined by Company's articles of association. The remuneration policy establishes the principles for the remuneration of certain staff categories, including general management, risk-takers, persons in a position of control, and all salaried employees who, in terms of total pay, belong to the same remuneration category as the general management and risk-takers whose professional activities have a substantial impact on the Company's risk profiles.

The remuneration policy is in line with the financial strategy, objectives, values and interests of the Company and its investors, and includes measures aimed at avoiding conflicts of interest.

In particular, the remuneration policy ensures that:

- a) performance valuations are part of a multi-year framework adapted to the recommended holding period of the Company's investors, in order to ensure that they impact positively on the Company's long-term performance and its investment risks and that the effective payment of performance-based remuneration is spread over the same period;
- b) an appropriate balance between fixed and variable components of global pay is established, the fixed component representing a sufficiently high proportion of the global remuneration in order that a flexible policy may be adopted as regards variable components, notably the possibility that no variable component be paid.

Details of this remuneration policy (including the persons responsible for determining fixed and variable remuneration, important remuneration information and an appraisal of the methodology by which remuneration is decided) are available at the registered offices of the Company, where they may be freely accessed on request, and online at:
